One dream

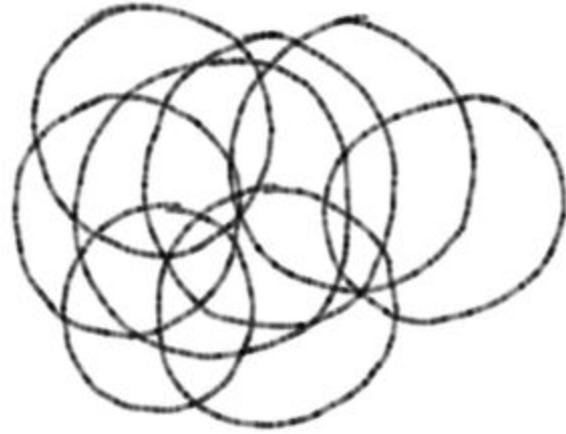

“Tomorrow we will have happier employees and customers than today.”

How self-organization takes place?

- People are different

Culture

Schein's organizational culture model

Assumptions > Values > Artifacts

EXERCISE

Think about which factors in your company/team/project guide to self-organization and which not?

What is the smallest thing you could change?

Self-organizing organization changes itself

Case: Code reviews

Dawn of Gerrit code reviews

- Code reviews useful but often hard to conduct and time consuming
- In one GE project, a developer wanted try out Gerrit for faster code reviews
- Result: understandability of code and code quality increased
- Soon Gerrit was taken in use in other GE projects too

Going viral

Change comes from within

- Good ideas will go viral
- Environment makes it more likely that new ideas emerge and spread
 - Internal instant messaging
 - Common coffee rooms / breaks
- Work practices
 - Low barrier to try out new things
- Others can help new ideas to spread

Driving change in self-organizing organization

Case: Retrospectives

Retrospectives

- Goal is to learn to work in a better way
- Effective tool when properly facilitated
- Previously used only at the end of projects
- Idea: We should use them also during the project

VINCIT JANUARY 2015

CHALLENGE

How to get 40 to 50 self-organizing project teams to realize the benefits of retrospectives?

Traditional way

- Manager decides to include retrospectives as part of process
- Goal and metrics: 90 % of projects have retrospectives
- Quick training for project managers
- Retros become part of process, frequency is measured and possibly holding them becomes part of the rewarding model

STEP 1: RETROSPECTIVES

STEP 2: ????

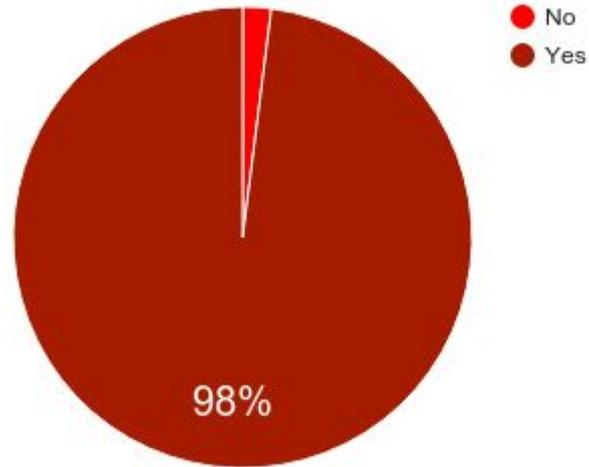

STEP 3: PROFIT!!

- Good, let's move on to next topic

Goal and metrics

- More retrospectives or get most out of retros?
- Our goal was to improve the quality of retrospectives and facilitation skills
- Metric: Survey after 6 months
- If people get results from retros, the number of retros will also go up

“You get what you measure”

Promote change from within

- Forget hierarchy and organization structure
- Top-down is not a way to go
 - If you want to retain self-organization
- Imitate the process, how ideas spread naturally in organization

Experiment

- Retrospectives were experimented internally at Vincit
 - Feedback and learning
 - Which methods work and which not?
- Experimenting with customer
 - Encouraging feedback
 - => Proceed

From experiment to practice

- Share the results of the experiments
- Offer yourself to run retros for other teams
- Engage enthusiasts
- Feedback

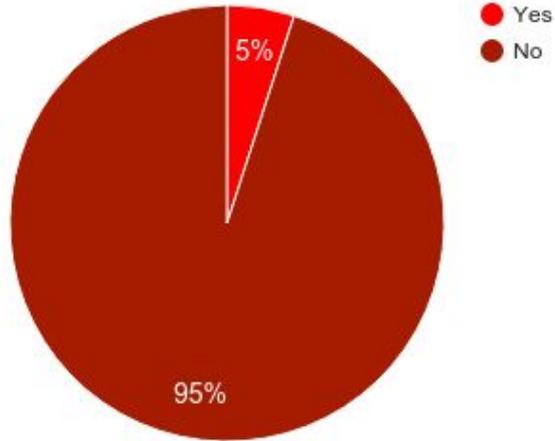

DID WE SUCCEED?

From January 2015 to June 2015

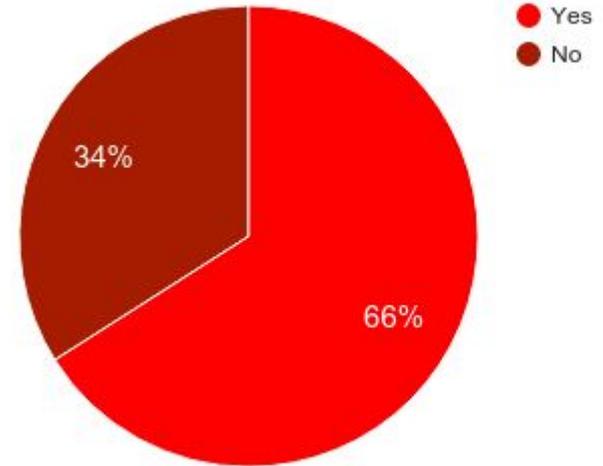

Vincit retrospectives

January 2015

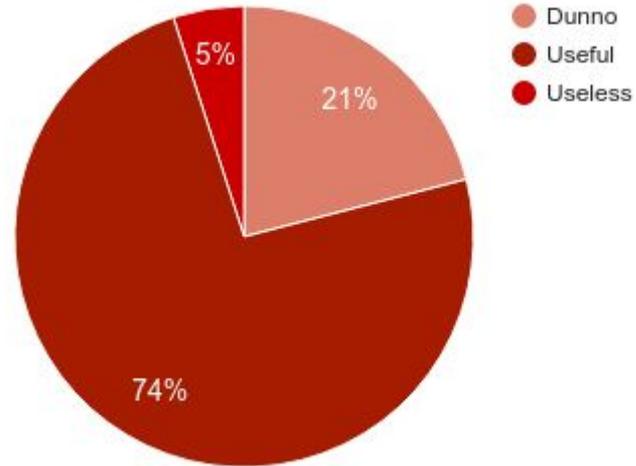

June 2015

June 2015

Retrospectives were useful?

Lessons learned

- Retros: Use facilitator who is not from the team
- Think how to spread information about retros
 - Email to everybody how retro went?
 - Coffee room discussions, instant messaging..
- Sales and design teams use retros, too
 - Even executive board
- Can be applied outside software projects, too

Summary

- Increase self-organization by changing environment and practices
 - On team level
 - On project level
 - On company level
- Self-organizing organization improves itself
- When driving a change, follow the natural model how ideas spread in the company

Thank you!
